

Master Players: Learning from Children at Play (Early Childhood Education Series)

Developed as a companion volume to The Plays the Thing, this book defines and analyses the concept of master player based on videotaped observations of pre-school children at play. By interweaving sequences of play together with their dialogue about them, the authors model how teachers can work as a team to develop their understanding of a particular child and of the value of childrens quality play, and how they can support it.
