

A Story of God and All of Us

The Story of God and All of Us is a sweeping narrative that dramatizes some of the most important events and characters in the Bible. The book provides enriching detail, dialogue, and descriptions about the Bible's most fascinating stories. All are historically and theologically accurate. A ten-hour miniseries on the History Channel was based on the story, and the script was reviewed by a number of Christian church leaders and seminarians for authenticity. The book was released one month prior to the debut of the television series. Many prominent biblical characters are dramatized in the story: Moses, David, Daniel, John the Baptist, and of course, Jesus. The book reveals the prophetic significance of the empires that occupied Israel: (Egyptians, Babylonians, Persians, and Romans) and how these figured into biblical prophecy, especially concerning the Messiah.
