

Through the Year With Emerson (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Through the Year With Emerson
January First. We have a great deal more kindness than is ever spoken. the whole human family is bathed with an element of love like a fine ether.
January Second. The effect of the indulgence of this human affection is a certain cordial exhilaration.
January Third. Friendship, like the immortality of the soul, is too good to be believed.
January Fourth. Two may talk and one may hear, but three cannot take part in a conversation of the most sincere and searching sort.
January Fifth. Almost every man we meet requires some civility, requires to be humored; but a friend is a sane man who exercises not my ingenuity, but me.
